Q55 - Has the pandemic changed what you expect from an Online class?

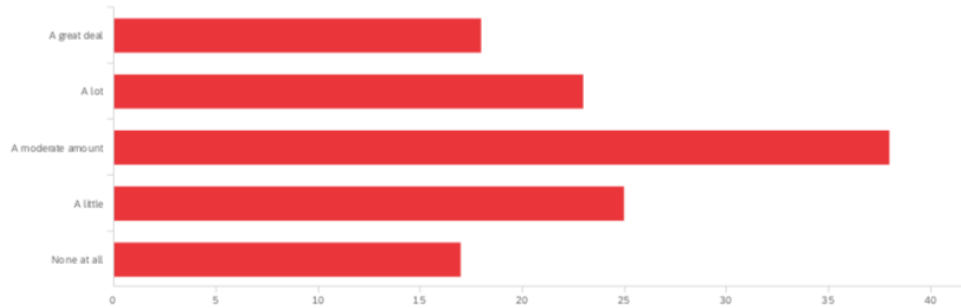

If so, in what way?

- I feel as though there may be professors teaching in an online atmosphere that previously had not and they have a different set of expectations of their students that are not always considerate of the fact that, many of them have a hectic schedule which is why they opted for online classes.
- I haven't necessarily expected anything to change, but any sign of grace from professors is really appreciated considering the absolute hell and trauma a lot of us are crawling through.
- These classes will be seen more as necessary as adapting to culture not just "the lazy option"
- I expect more instruction less teach yourselves

Q49 - How worried are you that COVID will negatively impact this semester for you here at UCF?

- I feel like being a freshmen and just starting out at college it is more beneficial for students to be enrolled in in-person classes because most schools do not prepare you for being online and having a course schedule you have to manage by yourself and on your own time without any reminders or in class discussion of concepts, etc.
- I learn so much better in person in a lecture or class, so having all online classes scares me for the sake of my academics. I also miss the social aspects and traditions at UCF
- I'm worried about not being focused and motivated enough, I have trouble focusing even in in person classes and especially online it is much easier to procrastinate and fall behind
- Because of COVID19 my mom lost her job so I am now the only source of income and so i had to take a full-time job plus overtime opportunities.

This is my first college semester. I was hoping to get a feel for the campus and college classes in general. Living at home and doing classes virtually really kills that for me and limits the depth with which I can connect with a class.

I am only a little worried about COVID impacting my semester because since all of my classes are now online, I decided it was best to stay home for the semester. This means I lack certain advantages such as using the library, tutoring centers, studying in groups, etc.

I am worried that we will get sent home. My roommates and I are all very studious and push each other to study and work together. I have a really hard time working and focusing at home for some reason and this change of scenery has made me super productive and motivated to work and succeed.
